Suggested Itineraries

Itinerary 1: Phi Phi Islands ●

One of the most beautiful island groups anywhere. Spectacular vertical cliffs rising from clear turquoise seas, beautiful lagoons enclosed by rock walls and idyllic tropical beaches have rightly made these islands amongst the most famous in the world. In 1998, the southernmost of the two islands, Phi Phi Le, was chosen as the location for filming 'The Beach', starring Leonard do DiCaprio.

Itinerary 2: Koh Hong (Krabi) & National Park of Phang Nga ●

Koh Hong is part of a group of islands located one hour north of Krabi. Koh Hong features Pelay Beach which is recognized for being extremely beautiful, boasting fine white sand, coral and lots of varieties of tropical fish. Pelay Beach is framed by limestone rock formations which give it an enclosed feel. Coupled with the fact that there are seldom many people there, Koh Hong very much offers a 'desert island' experience. Koh Hong is another collection point for the nests that provide the ingredients for bird's nest soup. The National Marine Park of Phang Nga Bay is the star attraction. More than 100 islands dot the warm, inviting waters of the bay and dazzle with their diverse geology.

Itinerary 3: Racha Islands ●

One of the most beautiful islands in south eastern Asia, Racha Island boasts beautiful sandy beaches ideal for sunbathing and snorkeling. The underwater paradise is dotted with coral reefs and beautiful marine life, along with a shipwreck off the southwest coast. Racha Island is a granite island, which ensures great underwater visibility throughout the year. The Racha Island is also home to several communities of farmers and fishermen, whose means of livelihood are coconut farming and fishing along the shallow waters of the Andaman Sea.

Suggested Itineraries

Itinerary 1: Phang Nga & Krabi ●

Day 1: Phang Nga & Krabi - The National Marine Park of Phang Nga Bay is the star attraction. More than 100 islands dot the warm, inviting waters of the bay and dazzle with their diverse geology. Ranging from low, gently sloping hills, to the sheer sided limestone sea-mountains (karsts) that rise out of the water to incredible heights, the images of Phang Nga and its majestic and strange outcrops have travelled the world. The bay was the location for the filming of 'James Bond and the Man with the Golden Gun', starring Roger Moore and Christopher Lee in 1974.

Overnight and day 2: Krabi - The stunning sea mountain scenery of Phang Nga extends down to Krabi and reaches further south to the deeper, crystal clear waters of the Andaman Sea. Many argue that the dense rain forest backed beaches of Krabi are among the most beautiful in the world.

Itinerary 2: Racha & Phi Phi Islands ●

Suggested Itineraries

Itinerary 1: Koh Lanta, Phi Phi and Phang Nga ●

Day 1: Unspoiled Koh Lanta, Koh Rok Nok & Koh Muk - To the south of Phuket lies the aquatic wonderland of tropical islands that are not to be missed. The low-lying sandy beaches of Koh Lanta are heaven for sun-worshippers and the ancient fertility carvings Koh Rok Nok indicate wonders passed. The stunning 'Emerald Cave' of Koh Muk is a magnificence to inspire the soul.

Day 2: Phi Phi Islands - One of the most beautiful island groups anywhere. Spectacular vertical cliffs rising from clear turquoise seas, beautiful lagoons enclosed by rock walls and idyllic tropical beaches have rightly made these islands amongst the most famous in the world. Itinerary 2: Similan Islands ● (fuel surcharge: THB 35,000)

At the Similan Islands, huge granite boulders tell the story of an entirely different geological process to that which created Phang Nga Bay. Astonishing smooth, weather-worn rocks the size of cars and houses tumble down the island's shorelines, looking like the left-over playthings of a mystical giant. Plummeting 35 metres and more to the seabed, the rocks have created a phenomenal underwater world that has been a magnet to divers for years. The crystal-clear water is legendary, while the coral reefs are reputed to be the most colourful and diverse in Thailand.

On the surface, the huge boulders blend seamlessly with lush forest and sparkling white sand beaches, while the waters surrounding the islands teem with tropical fish, including Whale Sharks and Giant Mantas – even the legendary Black Marlin.
